EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

Leadership, resilience, and entrepreneurship aren't learned in a book. They are developed by doing. Put theory to work and embed yourself in local, national, and international experiential learning opportunities.

Students are required to take four experiential learning courses, with the option to take additional courses as electives.

Innovation Field Project

In the signature MBA experiential learning course, students are paired with a corporate sponsor to identify critical business challenges and new opportunities. Use rigorous problem solving techniques learned in the first year of your full-time MBA to provide consultation and solutions to complex business problems. Develop strong leadership skills, all while gaining real-world experience to transfer directly back to your workplace.

EXPERIENTIAL COURSES

Advising Project Teams

Further develop your capacity to lead teams by advising an Integrative Field Project team.

Applied Behavioral Strategy

Work with a Baltimore or Washington, D.C. organization to gain a theoretical and practical understanding of consumer and employee behavior.

Big Data Consulting Project

Analyze an organization's large dataset, and present creative solutions to business challenges.

Design Lab and Commercializing Discovery

In this two-course series, full-time MBA students in the Health, Technology, and Innovation pathway manage a product's life cycle from design to commercialization.

Global Immersion

Travel abroad for firsthand experience of international trade policy, financial markets, and more.

Leadership Development Expeditions

Enhance your leadership skills on a nine-day outdoor excursion to Norway or Belize.

CAREER

Your MBA is the first step to build for what's next. The Career Development Office will work with you to develop a professional network and enhance your industry knowledge. When you graduate, you will be ready to change careers or advance at your current organization.

Analytics, Leadership, and Innovation

What will drive the next decade of business?

Understanding the application of business analytics alone won't drive innovation. You'll also need the leadership skills to engage the people around you to implement data-driven strategies. In the Analytics, Leadership, and Innovation pathway, harness the powerful synergy between analytics and leadership to navigate the fast-moving market.

Develop an in-demand skill set

Employers across industries are searching for managers who not only understand the technical data analysis tools but can also effectively manage teams to implement data-driven change. Develop the skill set the modern business environment demands.

Courses

- » Data Science: Artificial Intelligence
- » Ethical Leadership
- » Foundations of Business Analytics
- » Two experiential learning courses

Health, Technology, and Innovation

To lead in the health industry, you have to be ready to navigate changing government regulations, new technologies, and increased competition. With the Health, Technology, and Innovation pathway, build the specialized business-analytics and leadership skills to find technology-driven, human-centered solutions to complex health problems. Graduate ready to lead through change in the health industry.
